Holding A Husband

BY ADELE GARRISON.

"Mrs. Graham? Why—why—what is the matter? Has anything happened to—to—Mrs. Underwood?"

Robert Savarin's voice, deep, undeniably agitated, came over the long-distance telephone to me after a half-hour of interminable delay and vexation to both Dr. Pettit and myself. We had taken turns in trying to get the connection, and the physician had been the first to hear the voice of the artist. He had said: "Tell Dr. Pettit, Mrs. Graham wishes to speak to you," and Robert Savarin's mind evidently had conjured all sorts of dire possibilities.

I explained, as quickly and succinctly as I could, and then repeated Marion's message. There was no delay, no calculation in his answer. He evidently held nothing in the world above his desire to gratify the child's wish at the earliest possible minute.

"I can get the night train to New York in half an hour," he said. "I will reach there by eleven-fifteen. What do you know about the connections from there?"

Fortunately I had studied a time-table on my way from the hospital.

"The first train from here leaves at 1.29 o'clock in the morning, getting to Southampton about 9 o'clock," I said. "It is a newspaper train, and very slow, but the next one does not get here until 1 o'clock."

"If she needs me tonight I will get a car in New York and drive straight through," he returned.

"That would be—absurd"—I caught the word before it sounded, changed it to the more innocuous "needless." "The physician wishes her to sleep tonight, and you will be just in time tomorrow to see her after her night's sleep. I will meet you at Southampton with the car and take you over to the hospital. And do come prepared to stay awhile with us. We have just bought an old farm which I am anxious to show you."

"I shall stay, of course, as long as Marion wants me," he said with his grave courtesy.

"Then you will never go back," I retorted quickly, willing to have him attach any significance he chose to the remark. I heard him catch his breath, and felt like an old-time matchmaker.

"Tell me," his voice was husky, "how is—Marion's mother standing the strain?"

All the adoration and anxiety he felt for Lillian was betrayed in his voice. If I had never known he loved her before I would have discovered it in this moment.

"Wonderfully," I returned reassuringly, "but, Robieri," I used his given name purposely, for I felt that he was a little ill at ease with me, "I must tell you that Lillian has not her usual strength this spring. She needs some one to take care of her more than any one I know."

"Can I count on your aid?" he asked abruptly, and I felt a little thrill of satisfaction at the thought that he had not thought it necessary to explain his meaning to me.

"You know that," I returned heartily.

"Thank you. I shall count on you," he said gravely. "Southampton at 9, you say. I will be there. Good-by."

I turned from the telephone to find Dr. Pettit watching me curiously, interestedly. That he knew or guessed Lillian's story I had surmised, and that he understood the telephone conversation from hearing my side of it I was also certain. But as his eyes met mine they changed instantly to his usual impersonal and professional look, and I, of course, vouchsafed no explanation.

On one thing I had resolved, however, piqued by his reference to Dicky, and I broached it at once.

"There is not the slightest need of your going back with me to the farm, doctor," I said. "If you will permit me I will summon a taxi." I took down the local telephone book as I spoke.

"But I will not permit you." His voice was cold, inflexible, but still impersonal, and I could not help contrasting it with the inflection which I had been used to hearing in his voice—inflections which had annoyed me, it is true, but which, with feminine perverseness, I was piqued at not hearing.

"I shall have to ask you to wait on the way out while I make one very brief call," he went on. "But it will only delay us two or three minutes. And your taking a taxi would be the height of absurdity, for I want to have a look at Junior, anyway."

"What do you mean?" I asked, startled. "I thought you said that—"

"I did say he was in no danger," he interrupted hastily. "But I want to be sure he is not feverish, or that his arm has not begun to pain him."

And for my journey home, all ridiculous, unworthy thought of pique as to Dr. Pettit's changed feelings were banished by that most gripping of all emotions, worry over the welfare of a beloved child.

IS GRANDEST IN WORLD, SHE SAYS

Marion Woman Says She Is So Well and Happy She's Like a Different Person.

Characteristic of the statements that have made Tanlac a household word throughout the continent is that of Mrs Stella Wood, residing on N. Fontain St., R. F. D., Box 2, Marion, Ohio.

"Tanlac has restored my health so wonderfully I think it's the greatest medicine in the world and simply can't praise it enough. I feel that it is my duty to let everybody know about the medicine so that they may take it too and get relief like I did. Why, I had suffered for four or five years before I began taking Tanlac and was certainly in a badly run-down condition. Everything I ate seemed to disagree with me, and my stomach kept me in misery most of the time. I bloated terribly with gas, had awful pains in my back and shoulders, and in fact, all over my body. I had such dreadful headaches I could hardly stand them, and was so nervous and restless a good night's sleep was almost out of the question. I was so weak and worn out it was all I could do to drag through my housework and my husband as well as myself was very much worried over my condition.

"I will always remember the day I started taking Tanlac for that proved to be the turning point in my suffering, and five bottles of the medicine have made me well and happy again like I used to be before I got sick. I enjoy all my meals now and eat good and hearty of anything I want without feeling a sign of stomach trouble or distress of any kind. I have gained several pounds in weight too, never have an ache or pain, and am altogether like a different woman. This is why I think so much of Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Marion by The Dumble Pharmacy, and by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

This Nurse Tells Mothers

How to Save Children from Skin Irritations and Soreness

West Carthage, N. Y.—"I am a graduate nurse, and I feel it a duty I owe to mothers whose little ones suffer from chafing, rashes, itching, scalding, or any skin irritation or soreness, to tell them that in all my experience as a nurse I have never found anything equal to Sykes Comfort Powder to heal and soothe the skin. Habitually used after a child's bath, it heals and prevents soreness and rashes."—Mabel E. Miller, R. N., W. Carthage, N. Y.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in such cases is because it contains six healing, antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it "A Healing Wonder."

JUBILEE'S PARDNER

by Judd Mortimer Lewis

Illustrations by Edwins

Last night I dreamt that the three kittens was setting on the head board of my bed and looking at me, and I prompt that I had to hunch myself all up to see them, and the yellow one was knocked as round as a ball, and the yellow and white one was knocked flat, and the white one was knocked as long as a piece of string, and they all got there and their eyes began to look big and their claws began to get long and they was all looking at me, and I tried to get under the cover but I could not straighten out, and my neck was bent way back, and then I woke up, and I hugged Jubilee up tight to me and could feel him wagging his tail, and then I heard the old mother cat mlawing out in our yard.

After awhile I got up because I could not sleep and I snuck downstairs and Jubilee with me, and I went out on the steps and set there in my shirttail and Jubilee put his head on one knee and then the mother cat come and rubbed against me and I held her in my arms and she kept on crying for her kittens, and I felt kinda bad. Just then I heard the door slam behind me, and I knew that I was locked out, but I knew I could climb up over the roof, and then I heard the door open and someone asted who was there and it was my father.

I said it was me, and then he asted me what I was doing out there and what I was crying about, and I told him about the mother cat, but I was not crying and he knew it, and then he come and took the cat out of my arms and patted me on the head and said to run along to bed. And I did, because when he come out, I thought he was going to pat me somewhares else. You can never tell what a father is going to do.

I had a fight with Niba on the way to the pasture because I said I felt bad about the kittens and he said I was a mush head and I said he was a mush mouth, and he stuck his chin out at me and asted me who I was talking to, and by rights I ought to have said I was talking to him and we ought to of talked quite a while before we fit, but I was feeling so bad about the kittens that I paisted him as soon as he stuck out his chin. He was supprized. He spit blood all the way to the pasture. He was very proud of it.

Jubilee put his hand on one knee and then the mother cat came and rubbed against me and I held her in my arms.

Younisses mother was over after supper and she said Youniss must of et something because she had cholera morbus all night. She wanted to borrow my mother's caster oil and my mother lent her the bottle that I washed the castor oil out of and put the syrup in. That is mighty lucky for Youniss. Her mother was right about her having et something. I bet it was the green grapes. A girl is not as tuff as a fella. I pulled Jubilee up by the rope in his teeth and went to bed.

Initiatory Degree Is Conferred by Wayside Lodge of Odd Fellows—Druids Meet.

Marion Lodge, No. 32, B. P. O Elks, may organize a band. At the regular meeting Thursday night there was considerable discussion of this topic and while nothing of definite nature was done, the sentiment of the members appeared strongly in favor of the formation of such a musical organization.

A committee composed of J. A. Reed, W. D. Shryock and F. M. Paschall was appointed to make preliminary arrangements for a clam bake, the date and place to be determined later. The minstrel committee announced that the show this year will be held during the week of November 28 and there will be no matinees unless the demand for tickets justifies the giving of a performance Saturday afternoon.

Beginning next month the lodge will return to its regular schedule of weekly meetings.

GIRL KILLED WHEN AUTO PLUNGES DOWN 500 FEET

Child of J. Ira Messenger Meets Instant Death,

WHILE MOTORING WITH FATHER IN CALIFORNIA

Father, Well Known Here, Is Hurled Out of Car To Place of Safety.

Relatives in Marion have just received word of the tragic death of Katherine Elizabeth Messenger, aged eight years, daughter of J. Ira Messenger, Burbank, California, well known here. She was killed in an automobile accident on the Mt. Wilson toll road Sunday, July 24. The girl is a niece of R. W. and N. J. Messenger, of Marion.

Mr. Messenger was driving up the road and met another car at "Devil's Elbow" turn. Mr. Messenger backed his car in order to permit the other pass. Either he miscalculated the curve back of him, backed too straight or his brakes did not hold and the rear wheels of his car started to mount the small embankment at the curve.

"Realizing his danger, Mr. Messenger grabbed for his daughter, intending to toss her to the road," said the Pasadena Post in describing the accident. "He was oblivious of his own safety.

"Just then one of the back wheels lurched over the edge. The effect was to hurl Mr. Messenger from the machine and prevent any effort the little girl was making to jump. Being on the opposite side of the car, the shock which hurled the father out of the car had a tendency to hold the daughter in the machine."

The machine dropped 500 feet and there was scarcely enough of it left to remove. The girl was instantly killed, a fractured skull causing death. The father escaped injury.

FARMERS PROTEST HIGH COST OF FERTILIZER

May Cancel Orders for Thirty Tons of It.

THEY ALSO PROTEST ON STATE ROAD BUILDING

Want Contracts Held Up Until There Is a Proper Adjustment of Prices.

Orders for approximately 800 tons, or thirty cars, of fertilizer for Marion county farmers may be held up on account of high prices.

Pooled order for this amount of fertilizer, most of it acid phosphate, were turned over to the purchasing committee of the Marion County Farm bureau by business agents of the township farm bureaus and granges at the monthly meeting of the executive board of the county organization Thursday evening.

A motion was adopted unanimously that under present conditions, sixteen per cent acid phosphate should be purchased at $16 a ton, the pre-war price. Without exception the business agents of the smaller organizations reported that the men in their districts were refusing to purchase acid phosphate at the present market price of $21.-50 a ton. It was suggested that the committee withhold purchase of the fertilizer until the matter is thoroughly discussed with the companies.

Road Buildings, Too.

Discussion of the cost of road building resulted in the board directing the secretary to send a communication to the state highway commissioner asking that letting of contracts be withheld until there is a proper readjustment of prices. Plans were made for a farm bureau tent and exhibit at the county fair.

S. B. Stowe, county farm agent, submitted a report showing there has been twenty-six meetings and demonstrations in the various townships during the month of July and these had been attended by 770 persons. The work was devoted largely to poultry, marketing, soil fertilization and wheat standardization.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS GOES MONDAY EVENING

They Will Be Staged at Lincoln Park.

Local fight fans are promised one of the best and the biggest programs of fighting that has been witnessed in this city when the Knights of Columbus stage the show under the direction of the local boxing commisssion at Lincoln park, next Monday night.

The arena will be constructed in front of the grandstand and will be lighted so that seats from all parts of the stand will afford a good view of the ring. There will be forty scheduled rounds of fighting for the entertainment of the visitors and with the low prices of admission the tickets are going fast, but arrangements have been made to accommodate a record crowd.

The interest of the fight fans is being centered in the main go of twelve rounds between Al. Corbitt, of Cleveland, and Don Baxter, of Lima. On the result of this bout hangs the title of feather-weight championship of Ohio. Corbett is in training at the Dunn stable and is working out daily. He is in excellent shape and believes he will be able to put Baxter away before the finish. Corbett gained his last victory a week ago Wednesday night when he knocked out Jakie Mellman, of Columbus. Corbett and Baxter each have fine ring records and efforts to get them together have been under way for some time.

John Gerry, of this city, is training hard for his bout of ten rounds as a semi-final with Willie Jones of Brooklyn. Jones has an excellent record in the ring and is being trained for a coming champion in his class. Gerry is in fine shape and expects to be able to stop his man and make a showing to gain him a return match with Joe Belmont, who was given a decision over Gerry at one of the local shows.

The preliminary will be eight rounds and bring two fast boys together. Tommy Burns, who will meet Brockie Chapman, of Columbus, is training with Corbett at the Dunn stable and is confident he will win by a knockout. Chapman has met some of the best fighters in his class and has a good record. He is as confident of victory as is Burns.

Young Breen, of Akron, will meet "Indian" Holland, of Lima, in a six-round preliminary. Holland is not a stranger to local fans, while Breen has been making a fine showing and working his way up fast. The curtain raiser will bring the Herring twins, of Van Wert, together. They fight in real style and aim for a knockout, and will give a real entertainment.

According to promoters the forfeits of all the fighters have been posted and they promise no disappointments. The program will start at 8:15 o'clock and there will be car service to the park from the corner of State and Center streets, every ten minutes.

Doubles Tournament Will Be Started the Middle of Next Week.

Activities at the Marion Tennis club have reached a climax with the beginning of the Clark cup singles tournament which will be started Sunday morning.

The first leg on the new cup donated by W. D. Clark last year was won by Howard R. Stoll, who defeated John Hine in the finals of last season's tournament. It is necessary that a player win the tournament trophy three times in order to claim permanent ownership of the cup. It was formerly a custom to enter all the club members in the tournament regardless of their signing up for the elimination fray, but this season this custom was disregarded and only those who sign up on the bulletin at the club-house before Sunday morning will be admitted. After entries are closed, the tournament committee will take up the task of reclassification of players and of conducting the drawings.

Run Off in Week.

This will take place Sunday morning and play will start immediately after this has been accomplished. An endeavor is to be made to run off the tournament in a week and in order to do this the committee has decided to undertake the canceling and defaulting of matches that are not played at the scheduled time.

Stoll who holds the title of singles champion of the club because of his victory last season, will not be required to play in the tournament, but will defend his title only in the challenge round, the winner of the tournament being the challenger.

A doubles tournament to decide the championship of the club is also planned for the entries for this will likewise be closed Sunday morning. The doubles tournament will start the middle of next week.

TEMPORARY CAPITAL OF ASIATIC TURKEY

Sivas Is Living Still in the Thirteenth Century.

COUNTRY PRACTICALLY DEPENDS ON CANAL

City Exists in Region of Very High State of Development Before Steam Days.

Washington, Aug. 5.—"If the so-called 'Angora government,' of the Turkish Nationalists, has left Angora and shifted its capital to Sivas, as despatches state, following the defeat of its armies by the Greeks in Asia Minor, it has truly moved into 'the Turkish back country,' says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "In fact, it might almost be said to have moved from the twentieth century into the thirteenth. Angora is the rail head of the only steel highway that penetrates northern Asia Minor. Beyond this outpost of the age of machinery the country is wholly dependant for transportation on the camel and other beasts of burden, operating over roads that are far from good. Sivas lies more than 200 miles east of Angora and over 100 miles south of the Black sea.

"The city exists, however, in a region that reached a very high state of development long before the smoke of puffing locomotives ever darkened an Asian landscape, and it is no mean city, as cities go in its part of the world. It is credited with a population of 65,000, and is therefore of about the size of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Sacramento, California cities with which it has the further point in common that it is the capital of a 'state' or vilayet.

May Be Turkish Ruhr.

"Sivas is situated on a high plateau which is bleak and even frigid in winter when the blasts from the steppes of central Asia swirl around and over the Caucasus and give the region a climate comparable to the snow-swept plains of Russia But it is by no means a waste country. The grain of the plateaus of the Vilayet of Sivas and the fruits from its valleys help to feed the less favored sections of Turkey. It is rich in copper, iron, coal and other valuable minerals, and if an industrial Turkey ever rises Sivas may be its Silesia or its Ruhr.

"When Rome was the ruling power in the world, Sivas—then Sebasteia—was one of its chief border cities. Armenian kings ruled it for a while, and under the Byzantines it was the second most important city in Asia Minor, being surpassed only by Caesarea to the southwest.

"If in a 'union station' for camel caravans in the Bagdad of Karun-al-Rashid's day there was the counterpart of the train-crier of today, Sivas must have been often on his lips, for it lies in a strategic position between Bagdad and 'points west.' A few years later it became the metropolis of the Seljuk Turks' empire in Asia before they moved westward and captured Constantinople.

"When Marco Polo visited the city in the thirteenth century it was one of the show places of the Near East and had a population of about 100,000. At that time the city was noted for its fine rugs and carpets, but now that industry has passed farther west.

Heartless Act in History.

"When the Seljuks had the seat of their empire in Sivas their architectural arts flourished. The colleges which they built there in the thirteenth century are among the finest remains of Moslem art to be found in Asia Minor.

"Perhaps the most despicable act of cruelty ever perpetrated on a sacked city, even in a part of the world where cruel tyrants have been numerous, was inflicted on Sivas in 1400 by the notorious Timur-the-Lame. He caused a thousand children to be trampled to death under the hoofs of his war horses, and followed this monsterous proceeding by having 4,000 of the defeated Armenian defenders of the city put to death. Since it went through that harrowing experience the city has risen slowly to a position of any great importance."

Will Return.

Chicago, August 5.—"Big Jim" Vaughn, Cub pitcher, who left the club in New York, several days ago after being disciplined by Johnny Evers, will be restored to good standing, August 9. Vaughn is expected to prove of more value to the club under Bill Killifer, the new manager, who supplanted Evers yesterday, than he was under the "Trojan," whose methods he did not fancy.

Tagging the Bases.

The Yanks sneaked into first place by losing a game to the Tigers, while the Indians lost two to Washington Homers by Cobb and Jones featured the same.

Earl Hamilton shut out the Phillies with five hits and the Pirates canned ground on the Giants.

Walter Johnson's good right arm and the fine pitching of Erickson were too much for Cleveland in a double-header at Washington

A single and a triple by Strunk and McWeeney's punch pitching in the ninth enabled the White Sox to defeat Boston.

The Dodgers and Reds divided a double-header. Grimes outpitched Marquard, but Brooklyn could do little against Donohue.

McGraw's men were beaten by the Cards when Hornsby drove Shultz home with the only run of the game, which was a pitching duel between Nehf and Pertica.

The Browns made it ten out of twelve from A's on the season, to date, when Shocker outpitched Rommel and Keefe.

Bill Killifer's debut as manager of the Cubs was celebrated in defeat by the Braves, who hammered Ponder and Jones at will.

VEIOCK ON SPORTS

Nw York, August 5.—Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul ghost, is ready to take his coveted crack at the middleweight champion of the world. He is out with a challenge to Johnny Wilson. Bryan Downey or any boxer who can make the middleweight limit and he confidently expects to annex the title before his whirlwind campaign is finished.

In the ten rounds against Augie Ratnor, Gibbons demonstrated that he has made a marvelous comeback He was the winner by such a wide margin that Ratnor was practically left at the post. And Ratnor is not a slouch as a boxer or a puncher by any means.

Gibbons went around his man like a cooper around a keg Much of the speed and cleverness that won him a reputation as one of the greatest boxers of the age cropped out against Ratnor, though the veteran Mike did not have to extend himself to win. In short, St. Paul's wizard boxer gave Ratnor a valuable lesson in the Queensbury art that many a young lad coming up would be glad to pay for.

Tonight, in Boston, Gibbons will take on Guss Platts, the European middleweight champion, in a ten-round bout Next Tuesday night, he schedules to meet Jeff. Smith, the Bayonne, New Jersey, boxer, in a ten-rounder at Jersey City and August 26, he will trek down to New Orleans to take on Happy Littleton in a fifteen-round bout.

Last night's card at the Dyckman oval also brought together Gene Tunney and Marty Burke. Tunney won the judges' decision after ten rounds of milling, during which neither showed enough real form to give them a claim to class as heavyweight contenders. Champion Jack Dempsey could have whipped the pair in short order.

GOVERNOR MOTORS OVER MARION ROAD. SURVIVES

Then Expresses Himself After Reaching Bucyrus.

Governor Harry L. Davis was in the city at noon today, being accompanied by a party of military men, headed for Camp Perry where they will review the brigade this evening, says yesterday's Bucyrus Telegraph In the party with Governor Davis was General G. W. Reid, chief of the Fifth Army corps of Fort Benjamin Harrison.

It isn't very hard to discuss roads with a tourist stopping temporarily in Bucyrus, and Governor Davis expressed himself pleasantly about the road between Marion and Bucyrus, and commented on the absolute need of the substantial improvement which has already been placed under contract for the Crawford county end of the Marion road. He recognizes the need of pushing road construction at this time, because the wear of last winter was so great on the public highways and the needs of the automobilists will be great when the break-up comes in the fall.

Governor Davis calls attention to the fact that the cost of road building last year was just as great as it is today, but that no effort was made to stop any substantial improvements under his predecessor, and feels that now the best interests of the state call for keeping up with our substantial improvement of roads.

It is the expectation of Governor Davis to go back to Columbus by way of Cleveland, but promises to make Bucyrus a more substantial visit later in the summer. His party took lunch at the Elberson hotel and left immediately thereafter for Camp Perry. General Reid and his escort travels in a big army touring car and Governor Davis uses his own private car.

PROGRAM FOR SIXTEEN CONTESTS ARRANGED

Joint Kiwanis-Advertising Club and Merchants' Picnic.

WHICH WILL BE HELD AT LINCON PARK WEDNESDAY

Baker's Band Is Engaged To Furnish the Music—Program of Events.

A program of sixteen contests for the big joint Kiwanis-Advertising club and Merchants' picnic at Lincoln park Wednesday afternoon was arranged by a comittee representing these organizations at a luncheon at the Busy Bee cafeteria at noon today.

These contests include a tug of war between teams of five men each from the Kiwanis and Advertising clubs, this event to be the last one on the program. All of the entrants start the race at once. At first base the men secure their pipes and at second base they get the tobacco. Enroute from second to third base they fill the pipes, get the matches at third base and the man who reaches home plate first smoking his pipe wins the event.

HELGOLAND IS CEDED TO GERMAN EMPIRE IN 1890

But It Would Again Become British Property.

WATCHED LIKE SPIES DURING WORLD WAR

Petition Sent League of Nations Asking Neutralization or British Protection.

Washington, August 5.—"Because Helgoland became under Germany as truly a synonym for fortified strength as Gibraltar most persons probably think of the little island in the North sea as being as essentially German as Hamburg, the goose step or the Lorelei," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "But this bit of land was such a newcomer in the German family circle when the World war began in 1914," continues the bulletin, "that the greater part of its adult population had been born under an alien flag and was watched like spies by German secret agents during the hostilities.

"This rather tenuous relationship between Germany and Helgoland is recalled in the light of recent dispatches stating that the people of the island have sent a petition to the league of nations asking for neutralization and protection of the league or for reannexation to Great Britain. For it was to Great Britain, strangely enough, that Helgoland belonged for nearly 100 years prior to 1890 when it was ceded to Germany.

A Geographical Orphan.

"Helgoland lies about forty miles off shore from the mouth of the Elbe river, and geographically might belong either to Holland to the southwest, to Germany to the southeast, or to Denmark to the northeast. As a matter of fact the little island, at one time or another has belonged to each of those countries and to England besides. Its people were originally Frisians as were the inhabitants of the entire adjoining coast. Their language still in use on the island, is closer to the old Anglo-Saxon than any other existing tongue.

"The Frisians fought as stubbornly as any people in Europe against the encroachments of great kingdoms and empires, opposing successively the Romans, Franks, Dutch, Spanish, Germans and Danes. The people of isolated Helgoland maintained their independence long after their brothers of the mainland had been subjugated, and have kept alive even today, in the face of intensive efforts at Germanization, something of the Frisian spirit.

"A republic—one of the tiniest in Europe—from 950 until the fourteenth century, Helgoland then came under the control of the dukes of Schleswig. This was a semi-independent duchy under Danish influence. The island was taken over by Denmark at the beginning of the eighteenth century and was in turn captured by Great Britain about a century later during the Napoleonic wars. Germany came into possession of the island as the result of a political trade, not entirely pleasing to the inhabitants, who were thus thrown under German control. The cession took place in 1890 in return for the recognition by Germany of a British protectorate over Zanzibar, on the eastern coast of Africa.

The Eye of the Empire.

"No sooner had Germany come into possession of Helgoland than she began fortifying the island on a gigantic scale. The kaiser planned to make the crag 'the eye of the empire,' and its guard. Turrets of powerful, long-range guns were placed on all sides, dominating the lines of approach to the mouths of the Ems, the Weser, the Elbe and the Kiel canal.

"Practically the entire surface of the island, about a fifth of a square mile in area, was made bomb-proof. Underground passages ran in every direction through the solid rock and commodious underground barracks and seaplane hangars were constructed beyond the reach of bombardment. It is believed that more than $50,000,000 was spent in this creation of 'the Gibraltar of the North sea.'

"By the treaty of Versailles it was required that Helgoland be stripped of all this expensive military equipment. For months allied experts have been supervising the tearing down of the concrete and armor-plate fortifications and the cutting of the great guns by means of the oxy-acetylene flame into sections like gargantuan metal doughnuts. But so well did the Germans build their North sea fortress that it is estimated that another year and probably two will pass before the last of the war machinery will be dismantled.

"The few thousand inhabitants of Helgoland are fishermen. Their only ambition, they say is that militarism shall give them a wide berth in the future and that they shall be permitted to resume the making of their living from the turbulent North sea."

HOBO, BUT WORTHY, SO THEY CAN AID HIM

E. F. Sharpless and Doctor Play Good Samaritan Role.

"He was a stranger and they took him in."

One day last week a hobo fell in alighting from an Erie freight train at Oak street. He managed to make his way to a restarant on wast Center street.

Edward F. Sharpless, manager of the Orpheum theater, talked to the man and learned that he had been an usher with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey shows and was beating his way to his home in Dayton. Mr Sharpless took him to a doctor, who dressed his injuries. The fellow, who had missed connections with the show in Akron, told such a straightforward story about wanting to get to his home that the doctor gave him five dollars and Mr. Sharpless also gave him some money. Investigation revealed that the injured man was worthy of aid.

All of which goes to show that Marion will take care of those who are worthy.

OH, GLORIOUS WEATHER CONTINUES ON HERE!

Old Sol Playing a Popular Engagement Just Now.

The first fine spring day has nothing on the brand of weather the last few days for a pep getter. Who wouldn't rather pack that little old straw suitcase and beat it in pursuit of his favorite ghost, far, far and away from the howling rabble?

After the consistent roasting local earth plane dwellers received at the hands of Old Sol all during the month of July, he is about as popular here as a bottle of pop would have been at a brewers' convention.

Not that Marionites wish to be abandoned by him altogether, but "most everybody agrees now that he's jes' about right."

Ain't it the truth?

DENIES HE ORDERS SEIZURE OF SHIP

Or Comments on Future Policy of Government.

New York, Aug. 5.—Colonel William Hayward, United States attorney for the New York district, today denied that he had ordered the seizure of the liquor-bearing British vessel, Henry T. Marshal, outside the three-mile limit, or that he had made any announcement concerning the "past or present" policy of the government in smuggling cases. Colonel Hayward telephoned his denial from Atlantic City.

George Hildebrand, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., and George McNamara, who are enjoying an outing at the Y. M. C. A. camp at Hepburn, were in the city Thursday.

CELERY SWAMPS ARE BURNING TODAY

Engineers Are Fighting Fire Near Canton.

Canton, Aug. 5.—Celery swamps near Hartville, this county, are threatened by fire which is spreading rapidly and consuming the fields as it goes.

The swamps are remains of vegetation deposited when prehistoric glaciers melted in this vicinity and have qualities similar to peat. The muck is four feet deep and the beds are a seething mass of fire to this depth.

County engineers with a large force of workmen and volunteers from farms in the district, started work today on construction of a trench dug through the glacial muck to the clay beneath, in the hope that the fire will burn itself out when it reaches this. If this fails to stop the spread of the fire, federal engineers who recently made an extensive examination of these fields will be asked to aid.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY'S WINDOW WASHING.

[BY HOWARD R. GARIS.]
[Copyright 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

"Come on, Uncle Wiggily! Let's go off in the woods and look for an adventure!" called Grandfather Goosey Gander one day to the bunny rabbit. Mr. Longears was out on the front porch of his hollow stump bungalow. He had with him some clean cloths, a pail of water and a long-handled brush.

"No, Grandpa Goosey. Much as I'd like to go I can not," Uncle Wiggily sadly said.

"Why not?" Grandpa Goosey wanted to know. "You often go adventuring by yourself. Why don't you come with me?"

"Windows is the answer," replied Uncle Wiggily, and he didn't even twinkle his pink nose, he felt so sad. "Windows, Grandpa Goosey?"

"What do you mean—windows?" repeated the goose gentleman.

"I mean I can't come with you because I promised Nurse Jane I'd stay home and wash the windows," went on Mr. Longears. "They are very dirty and need washing, and they are so high that Nurse Jane can't very well wash them. So today I must stay home and wash windows."

"And it's such a beautiful day for an adventure!" quacked Grandpa Goosey. "Just think! We might chase the Fox'"

"Or he might chase us!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "No! No! I can't go. I must wash windows!"

"Oh, let us do that!" begged some little voices at the side porch of the hollow stump bungalow. "You go on with Grandpa Goosey, Uncle Wiggily and we'll wash the windows for you."

Up the steps came running Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the Puppy dog boys, and Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels.

"We'll wash the windows!" they cried. "You go adventuring, Uncle Wiggily."

"You can't wash windows!" objected the rabbit gentleman.

"Just give us a try!" barked Jackie. "We know a new way to wash windows, don't we, Peetie?"

"Surely we do—a fine way, too!" whined Peetie.

"Give them a chance!" quacked Grandpa Goosey. And so, in the end, Uncle Wiggily put on his tall, silk hat and, taking his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, off he hopped with his friends.

Now you will be surprised when I tell you how Jackie and Peetie and Johnnie and Billie intended to wash Nurse Jane's windows. It was with their tow rubber balls! Yes, as true as I'm telling you, with rubber balls, that were hollow and could be filled with water that could be squirted out again.

"Here! Quit that!" chattered Billie

"Now we must really help Uncle Wiggily, and wash these windows!" barked Jackie when the bunny and Grandpa Goosey had gone. "Fill your balls! Ready! Take aim! Squirt!"

At the soldier-like command the four animal boys filled their balls with water, aimed the holes at the windows and pressed the balls in thier paws.

"Whizz! Whizz! Squirt!" Out shot four streams of water against four windows, the water running down the panes in little streams as when it rains.

"Oh, this is fun!" cried Peetie, as he squirted some water sideways on Billie Bushytail.

"Here! Quit that!" chattered Billie. "Wash the windows, not me!"

"All right!" barked Peetie. "I've got to put more water in my ball!"

The puppy dogs and the little squirrels filled their balls again and again at the pail Uncle Wiggily had left. Then they squirted water on the windows. They also squirted on each other and on the sides of the bungalow and on the steps and the porch and all over. If Nurse Jane had been home she would have stopped them, but the muskrat lady housekeeper was at the movies.

"Now, let's all squirt together!" barked Peetie, when the windows were soaking wet. "They need lots of water." Squirt they did, but Billie pointed his ball the wrong way and sprayed a lot of water on Mrs. Twistytail the pig lady, who walked past just then.

"Wee! Wee!" cried Mrs. Twistytail.

Then Johnnie, by accident, squirted some water on Aunt Lettie, the goat lady, who had come to see Nurse Jane.

"I guess this is enough," barked Jackie.

"No, one more ball full each," chattered Billie.

They filled their balls again and squirted as hard as they could press them and just then along came Nurse Jane and she was soaked through.

"Oh! Oh! You mischievous boys!" she cried. "I know you wanted to help Uncle Wiggily, but he never should have gone away leaving you to wash the windows. I must tell him, so when he comes back. But anyhow, I must say the windows are nice and clean, and so am I," she laughed.

Then she went to wipe the water from her face and the animal boys ran away. And though the windows were made clean, Uncle Wiggily never again let anybody else wash them. He did it himself.

Suffering of a Quarter Century Quickly Relieved by Nerv-Worth

West Virginian Tells Interesting Story.

"I suffered 25 years with stomach trouble and nervousness," said L. F. Ferguson, Route 2, Parkersburg, W. Va., in a letter written some time ago, and he continues, "I had pains in my stomach, back and side, and my circulation was poor. I got no sleep and was so tired in the morning when I got up as when I went to bed. I became restless and despondent. I had doctored right smart and spent lots of money, but my food would not digest and I was always full of gases. Since taking Nerv-Worth, my condition is a great deal better in every way. I am feeling good, sleeping fine, my food digests, and the gases are gone. My whole general condition is much improved and I certainly recommend Nerv-Worth to my friends." ## THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"As soon as man expert from time has found the key to life, it opens the gates of death."

As a rule, the man who goes about proclaiming that he must have a night-cap before going to sleep, is far more in need of a muffler.

There is no occasion for worry over any possible suffering on the part of Lenine and Trotzky, should the threatened famine in Russia obtain. It would never hit them.

It doesn't take long to work marked changes. Five or six years ago people sometimes tried to observe the traffic regulations.

New York customs inspectors claim that women are smuggling hootch by carrying it in on their persons. They fail, however, to explain the mystery of how they can possibly do it without detection.

Since that Plymouth guard failed to recognize Senator Lodge, right in his home state of Massachusetts, we've been wondering if there is any use, anyway, in acquiring distinction as a scholar and a statesman.

What doth it profit the man who gets a week off on pay that there are almost countless resorts if it takes four days to go and come from them?

We would be untrue to ourself if we refrained from voicing our utmost condemnation of the action of the trustees of Johns Hopkins hospital in limiting the charges of their surgeons to $1,000 for an operation. The first thing we know somebody will be striving to limit the price of paragraphs.

THE HORRORS OF FAMINE.

The fourth horseman of the Apocalypse, who spreads death in various ways, but who usually is thought of in connection with famine and pestilence, has seldom been better described than by former Premier Kerensky, of Russia, in talking of the starving in his unhappy country. While the statements of Kerensky who is now in Paris, having been driven from his native land by the Bolsheviki, may contain exaggerations on account of his prejudice against the soviet regime, the fact that the call of the All-Russian central executive committee to the aid of the stricken looks to the American relief organization to provide for 1,000,000 children and invalids shows the extreme gravity of the situation.

"Never in the history of the world has such a calamity confronted a nation," says Kerensky. "Never was such a mass of people left without provisions, exposed to disease, famine and plague. Even the great famines of China and India are not to be compared with that in Russia."

Unless immediate aid is given he fears the number of deaths in the country this year from hunger and pestilential diseases will reach 15,000,000. He bases his statement upon information he obtained from Russian refugees. Ten million persons, he declares, have joined the caravans that move over the dusty plains in search of food, with thousands constantly falling by the wayside. No vivid language is necessary to give the world to understand that conditions must be terrible in Russia and to arouse sympathy for the victims. How could the situation today be other than frightful in that land in view of the fact that the people were seriously oppressed before the calamities let loose by the World war reached them?

It seems to be a law of civilization that peoples can learn only by experience: that no triumph of progress is to be won without a struggle—without the payment of a price. It would seem that only by such painful methods can a backward people be aroused and developed. The trouble of the Russian people today is due principally to their own ignorance that has made it possible to fasten such misgovernment upon them. Out of the trial, however, there should soon come an awakening that will start them on the right road to better government.

As for the rider of the pale horse, we see, in the preparations being made by other countries to feed the needy in Russia, that he is a "judgment" that can be set aside. The moment food arrives for the starving he will disappear. Courage and common sense should have little difficulty in ripping away some of the things now cursing Russia.

ENRICO CARUSO.

Caruso, the golden-voiced, the most gifted and distinguished singer of his day, is dead. The world will mourn, because Caruso, although a native of Italy, belonged to the world. Wherever music lovers dwell, there the voice of the richly-talented Neapolitan was known. Born of humble parentage, he rose to a high state as a result of a voice that exerted a marvelous power and which now is stilled forever. Perhaps not since the day of Jennie Lind has any singer been placed on as high a pedestal in the matter of public esteem as Caruso occupied, and he was a favorite alike in the countries where the tongue is Latin, English, Teutonic or Slavic.

Starting life from a lowly position, he sought and won the best gifts fortune has to offer. It is said of him that he was an unpromising pupil as a student of music, but he must have had great faith in his ability to succeed. Instead of being discouraged by poor progress in his early days, he persisted in his attempts to master the technique required properly to use the wonderful voice with which nature had endowed him. Music, it appears, was as difficult for him to learn, as for many who have no singing voices whatever.

How thorough his training may have been may be judged from the fact that an edition of Who's Who states that he had no musical education worthy of note. It will thus be seen that the great tenor rose to a great height despite a discouraging handicap. It may be said that fame was generous toward him, but if fortune smiled on him he returned the smile with interest. He amply repaid the world for all of its gifts and now that he is gone and his voice is silenced for all time, his contemporaries will acclaim him as one of the notable characters of his time.

Philadelphia police are puzzled, according to the Record of that city, over the fact that a girl's knee was hit by a bullet without puncturing her skirt. Huh! That's easy! She probably was sitting with her knees crossed.

The California judge who flogged a wife-beater out there after hearing the case is to be forgiven, of course, if it develops that he didn't have a husky court bailiff better fitted physically to lay on the gad.

Statistics are said to show that this country blows itself for a billion annually for soft drinks. Soft drinks have been given some knocks, of late, but we never heard of a man loading up on them to go home and beat up his wife.

THEY HAVE THEIR TROUBLES.

Sixty-five American citizens admitted to Uncle Sam that in the calendar year, 1919, they had incomes of $1,000,000 or more. Here, we conclude, is the little bunch that typifies what the chronically envious denounce as the idle rich.

Possessors of material wealth far beyond their personal and family needs they are, no doubt. But that they are idle or uselessly occupied is not to be believed. We venture the opinion that each one of these men is busier than a hive of bees. Just taking care of their fortunes, seeing that none of it gets away, must be as much of a task as corraling a million flees in a chip basket. The money did not just flow in. Approximately forty per cent. of the total income of the sixty-five is estimated derived from personal service and business. The rest came from property. Thing of the worry they must have expended. Do you envy them? Probably you do. But they won't have it long. None of these fortunes will remain intact a great while.

A vast amount of good has been done the people as a whole in the process of accumulating the great piles, for no individual can prosper in business without conferring substantial benefits on great numbers of others. It is a serious question if the reverse will not be true when comes the time for disintegrating the fortunes. Some of them are and will be administered on the principle that owners of large wealth are but stewards. The benefits flowing from them will be extended. But otherwise we can be complacent also, for the common run will get a chance at them.

It is because we all have a chance that there is the constant shifting of fortunes which gives zest to life and striving.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

COURTESY.

"How sweet and gracious, even in common speech,
Is that fine sense which men call courtesy!
Wholesome as air and genial as the light,
Welcome in every clime as breath of flowers—
It transmutes aliens into trusting friends,
And gives its owner passport round the globe."

Courtesy!

What is it, really?

Politeness born of kindliness; courtliness begotten of good-breeding; chivalry conceived of courage and consideration.

True courtesy isn't the mere mannerisms of the fashionable fop. It doesn't consist merely of words and gestures, of smiles and smirks. True courtesy means kindness felt, respect shown and service rendered.

The polished urbanite may be a boor and a poltroon.

The country clown may be a courteous gentleman.

The ragged and barefoot newsboy who voluntarily helps the poor washerwoman across the street, with her heavy bundle, is far more courteous than the immaculately-clad gentleman who mechanically smiles, bows, and tips his hat to the fashionable lady.

Remarks the editor of the Ohio State Journal:

Our inquiring reporter asked five men the other day whether they thought a man should take off his hat when he is in an elevator in company with women. One of those interviewed took the rather curious position that the man should show this mark of courtesy if he knew the women, otherwise not, but the other four came out strongly for the removal of the hat in the presence in the elevator of any women. We are glad to find so close an approach to unanimity on the question.

But do these four men invariably practice what they preach?

And, if they do, wherein lies the virtue of their acts?

The editor of the Journal goes on to say:

When a man removes his hat in the presence of a woman it is a mere outward and wholly conventional sign that he respects womanhood. But mere outward signs have their value; they help foster the sentiment they stand for. Respect for womanhood is at the bottom of morality and, in fact, of civilization itself.

Just so.

Perhaps so.

But, if so, here are some questions I should like to ask:

If we men should doff our hats, out of respect, to women in elevators, why shouldn't we do the same on railway trains?

Why shouldn't we be as courteous on street cars as in elevators?

Why shouldn't we show the same marks of respect in stations and waiting-rooms?

Why shouldn't we lift our lids on all occasions when in the presence of women within walls?

Why should we manifest such courtesy in elevators alone?

And why shouldn't we be as courteous without walls as within walls?

In other words, wouldn't it be well for us men not to wear hats at all?

Wouldn't it be more convenient—as well as more courteous?

WAR RAGES HERE

The International Sunday-school Lesson for August 7 is "Paul's First Missionary Journey"—Acts 13:1-52.

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS

... by most newspapers ... on a large scale, with ... hundreds of thousands of ... against each other, ... Bible lands. Greeks ... are doing the actual ... the interests of all the ... are involved. The ... will ultimately be of even ... than on the western front.

... newspaper often turns ... the Bible, so in the pres- ... the scripture lessons ... being studied by members ... Sunday-schools throughout ... and may turn many minds to the day's cablegrams. Asia Minor, where the largest-scale fighting now to be seen on earth is under way, is the identical scene of the new campaign of Christianity's greater soldier, the Apostle Paul. The best map from which to study the day's despatches are those printed in the backs of modern Bibles. This coincidence of modern news with ancient history is only one of the ways wherein the Sunday-school begets large-mindedness, and makes for world citizenship. It is incumbent upon Christians to think and live spaciously.

Greatest Work In the World.

We are brought squarely up against a big idea by this lesson. For here begins, in the Acts history, that campaign of world conquest which burst the Judean and Syrian boundaries of Christianity, and carried the tidings quickly to the centers of Roman power, and even to the borders of Europe; and which continues today to bear the same banner across the borders of Thibet, into "the center of the center of Africa," as one missionary letter I have received is dated; into the far islands of the sea, and to every people under heaven. We have to do with a movement which has changed maps, moulded nations and altered the course of history.

It is a fat lesson that crowds us today, so there is no room to recall how the known world, then centering about "the great sea," which is afresh the scene of the deepest perplexities that confront modern statecraft, was prepared for this swift extension of the good news of a Savior for all mankind. Greece had imposed a common language of culture upon all peoples, so that the missionaries could be understood everywhere. Rome had laid a network of good roads and legal protection over the known world. Judea had provided the religious background for the new message. So it was as the man of the hour—God's own hour—that Paul set forth.

God's clocks all chime in tune. As thoughtful persons perceive the extreme present need of a new spiritual motive to restore, restrain and reign over human life, they see also how one hundred years of Christian missions have occupied most of the strategic places of earth. At least a skeletonized preparation of the entire world field has been made for the new campaign of Christianization for which the distraught race waits. The making ready of the ancient world for Paul's missionary tours was no more Providential or dramatic than that which today lies before our eyes. Ours is a unified humanity, with unprecedented communications and identity of interests and needs. The field is prepared; the message is ready and adequate; the need is surpassing, all that lacks is the statesman-soldier-saint to follow in Paul's steps.

Little Men In Big Places.

In no censorious spirit, I hope, I am bound to record the great and growing conviction that organized Christian work needs a better type of leadership. The smallness of the men in high official positions of religious responsibility in both discouraging and exasperating. Few of them can see farther than their own jobs. They are often only clerkly-minded occupants of salaried positions, which supreme concern is the safety and success of their own organizations. Their complacency is as remarkable as their incompetence. Most of them think themselves "leaders," whereas they are often found in opposition to real advancement and to large kingdom projects. The pioneering spirit of Barnabas and Saul is utterly lacking in them.

One sometimes wishes that it might be possible for all salaried workers in organized Christianity, excepting possibly the active ministers of the gospel, to spend a period of, say, five years in self-supporting secular pursuits. Then there would ensue a wholesome testing of the reality of all the professional beliefs and activities and also, it is to be hoped, a mighty accession of Christian activity into the ordinary walks of life. We have gone a long way from the self-supporting missionary work of the pioneers about whom we are now studying.

If it is true that strange limitations, intellectual, spiritual and social, seem to encompass the official leadership of religious roganizations, it is even more true—and somewhat a corrective of this condition—that the ordinary company of Christians are strangely ready nowadays to rise to the largest conceptions and presentations of religious opportunity and duty. No statement of the church's present mission can be too bold or sweeping for the average religious congregation or convention. The time-spirit of crisis has moved powerfully upon the popular mind. Christians generally believe that Christ is calling His people to unexamined service; and they really clamor for brave, big leadership. The church is impatient of all attempts to compress the gospel of Christ into a mere formula of petty prescriptions and proscriptions; she wants to go with Saul into the difficult places and to attempt the audacious tasks. One reason why there is today an alarming shortage of candidates for the ministry is that perfunctory and professional ecclesiasticism does not appeal to high-souled youth; there is not enough that is heroic and sacrificial and great-visioned and Pauline in the present form of call to the pulpit.

A Preacher Hero.

Cosmopolitan, indeed was the church at Antioch which bade farewell to the three pioneers upon the Great Adventure—the greatest adventure, indeed, in all history. Caesar crossing the Rubicon, Columbus braving unknown seas, were of less significance than the setting forth of Barnabas, Saul and John Mark from this tender Christian fellowship of the home church to attempt the Christian conquest of the world.

At the outset, Barnabas was the big man of the trio. It was to his homeland of Cyprus that the trio sailed. He was evidently the large, gracious figure, of imposing physical presence; so that later he was mistaken for Jupiter by the heathen. Saul was an undersized Jew, of insignificant appearance. But the exigencies of travel and danger and work being the real leader to the fore; and we soon find Saul the head of the party. Up to Cyprus it had been "Barnabas and Saul"; thereafter it was "Paul and Barnabas." Saul got a new name—still a common practice in the East—at Paphos in Cyprus. Paul means "Little," but the designation was won because he proved himself big by soul-measurement.

A Jewish sorcerer named Elymas had the Roman proconsul, Sergius Paulus, in his toils. There is a whole library of literature dealing with the aptitude of renegade Jews for witchcraft. This man Elymas played for high stakes; he was a daring fellow, of the sort whom most reformers would prefer to deal with in the safety of their own pulpits or editorial sanctums. Paul, however, faced him in person and looked him in the eye and told him just the sort of sinner he was. In language that would not be permitted today in some of our best pulpits, Paul tagged Elymas with his family name as a son of the devil. He went further and laid the blinding hand of God upon those evil eyes. Small wonder that the proconsul was converted! Men always are converted when they see the fearless Gospel of Christ operating with power.

A Journalistic Slacker.

While Paul played the hero, the third member of the party, John Mark, secretary and reporter, played the "slacker." As a newspaper man I am proud of John Mark's journalistic ability; he wrote his first and best "story" of the life and work of Jesus. But as an humble fellow-craftsman I feel that he brought disredit upon an honorable profession when he dunked the perils of Asia Minor. In my own work as a foreign correspondent I have known a few reporters who proved cowards in danger, but they were the rare exception. John Mark shared in the glorious farewells of Antioch; he was a hero in the beginning; but when Asia Minor was reached and the prospects of robbers and mobs and other travel perils loomed ahead—and I can testify that this is a rough, though sublime region—he quit cold, and turned back to safety.

Paul was angry. Every soldier will understand his contempt for the coward: for at the front, in the great war, there was almost only one virtue; courage, I am glad that Paul sent the timid young man off with blistering words, and refused to take him along the second time. For it seems as if of late the church has lost her capacity for indignation, and her power to rebuke evil. Burning and scorching condemnation of ethical transgressions is not nowadays a characteristic of religion. This jellyfish sort of sentimentality has scant support in the example or teachings of the greatest interpreter of the Mind of Christ.

Nevertheless, I am glad that when John Mark repented and mended his ways, Paul was reconciled to him; and that John Mark later did his immortal work of writing the second gospel. Ours is a religion of the second chance.

We need to use our wits in trying to picture the methods of the first Christian missionaries. As Dr. Stalker says, "We naturally think of them as the most important personages in a city; to us their entry is as august as if they had been carried on a car of victory. Very different, however, was the reality. They entered a town as quietly and unnoticed as any two strangers who may walk into one of our towns any morning. Their first care was to get a lodging; and then they had to seek for employment, for they worked at their trade wherever they went. Nothing could be more commonplace. Who could dream that this travel-stained man, going from one tentmaker's door to another, seeking for work, was carrying the future of the world beneath his robe! When the Sabbath came round they would cease from toil, like the other Jews in the place, and repair to the synagogue. They joined in the psalms and prayers with the other worshippers and listened to the reading of the scriptures. After this the preceding elder might ask any one present had a word of exhortation to deliver. This was Paul's opportunity. He would rise, and with outstretched hand, begin to speak. At once the audience recognized the accents of the cultivated rabbi; and the strange voice won their attention. Taking up the passages which had been read, he would soon be moving forward on the stream of Jewish history, till he led up to the astonishing announcement that the Messiah hoped or by their fathers and promised by their prophets had come, and he had been sent among them as His apostle. Then would follow the story of Jesus.

"We can easily imagine the sensation produced by such a sermon from such a preacher and the buzz of conversation which would arise among the congregation after the dismission of the synagogue. During the week it would become the talk of the town; and Paul was willing to converse at his work or in the leisure of the evening with and one who might desire further information. Next Sabbath the synagogue would be crowded, not with Jews only, but Gentiles also, who were curious to see the strangers; and Paul now unfolded the secret that salvation by Jesus Christ was as free to Gentiles as to Jews. This was generally the signal for Jews to contradict and blaspheme, and, turning his back on them, Paul addressed himself to the Gentiles. But meantime the fanaticism of the Jews was roused, and they either stirred up the mob or secured the interest of the authorities against the strangers; and in a storm of popular tumult or by the breath of authority the messengers of the Gospel were swept out of the town. This is what happened at Antioch-in-Pisidia, their first halting place in the interior of Asia Minor; and it was repeated in a hundred instances in Paul's subsequent "life."

Observe that Paul's sermons, like those of Peter and Stephen, were chiefly the telling of the Story. More fact and fewer thin homilies are a need of the pulpit. How seldom one hears the story told in its apostolic simplicity! Yet that story is the hope of our troubled world.

ANNUAL REPORT OF MARION SCHOOL NURSE

Sixty Per Cent. of Pupils Defective Some Way.

ACCORDING TO CLARA BAHRE, SCHOOL NURSE

Report Covers Wide Field in This Branch of School Work and Is Interesting.

August brings the school nurse's work to a close for the first year with the following report:

There were 2,513 children examined. These were the first four grades of each building with a few from the upper grades. According to the limited examination of the nurse approximately sixty per cent. show physical defects including malnutrition. If these children were given a complete physical examination by a school physician as is the custom in most cities many would undoubtedly show serious defects such as abnormal conditions of heart or lungs. Parents of these children who show physical defects have been advised of their conditions and asked to consult their family physician, dentist or eye specialist as the case may be for the correction of the same.

Year's Cases.

The following is a summary of the year's cases:

Those who have received treatment, 316. Of these eighty have been fitted with glasses, eighty-six tonsil operations.

Sixty-five have had dental work done and the remainder have had medical attention for various other conditions found.

There were 493 other cases where the parents have signified their willingness to see that their children had the needed attention before they go back to school this fall. There were 258 cases where the parents were indifferent or refused altogether. One hundred and eighty-three had moved out of town, or for various reasons the nurse was not able to see the parents. In thirty-four cases the doctor did not advise treatment. There were 1,268 calls made during the year.

Cases of Dependents.

Cases of dependent children or those from homes where the family was in poor circumstances were given free attention. Some of the physicians of Marion have willingly given their services gratis. There were twenty-seven tonsil and adenoid operations performed free beside medical attention for various other conditions. A number of eye specialists have fitted glasses.

This has been done for just the cost price of the glasses, giving their services free. There were thirty cases taken care of in this way. If the parents were able they paid something on them, if not it was paid by outside organizations.

There has been some free work by the dentists of Marion also. However, a much larger number could have been taken care of had there been a dental clinic in one of the school buildings as is the case in many places. Practically all of the dentists of Marion have signified their willingness to give their services in this way if such a clinic could be opened. One of the large dental supply houses has offered to equip such a clinic at the cost price of the equipment needed.

Oral Hygiene.

The school nurse has tried to lay much stress on oral hygiene this past year. As each child was examined he was questioned as to whether or not he had a tooth brush and how often he used it.

About a third of the children examined had no tooth brushes. They were urged to get one. There were 100 tooth brushes given out free to children in the lower grades where parents could not or would not get them one. Also 1,000 tubes of tooth paste.

Follow up work has shown that many parents are in need of instructions regarding a child's teeth. Only those who had permanent teeth defective or needed cleaning or extraction were referred to a dentist yet quite a few parents refused to see about the matter because they believed they were only the child's temporary teeth. The fact that a child gets his first permanent teeth, namely the six year molars at the age of six or seven years is one that needs to be impressed upon many parents so that they will not be neglected as is so often the case.

Red Cross Sales.

Through the sale of Red Cross seals in the schools it has been possible to purchase scales for each school building. Monthly weighing and measuring has been instituted.

All children who are ten per cent. or more underweight have been noted and urged to drink milk instead of tea or coffee. In one of the school buildings a morning lunch of Graham crackers and one-half pint of milk was tried out with good results. Many of the children who are greatly underweight have one or more physical defects which might be the cause. Correction is especially urged in these cases.

The Marion circle, of the Child's Conservation league, organized the school health work last fall and have paid the nurse's salary and incidental expenses for this year. The following organizations have given the nurse financial assistance in caring for charity cases:

The What-So-Ever Circle King's Daughters; the Marion County Federation of Woman's Clubs, the Elks, the Woman's Century club, the Council of Jewish Women, and Mrs. Addison Bahr matron of the Detention home, who has given the use of the hospital room at the Detention home for charity tonsil and adenoid operations.

Not Possible To Do It.

It was not possible to take these cases to the City hospital unless the regular rate was paid and that was impossible.

A school health department is no experiment, but something that has been tried out for a number of years in all cities of any size.

Its aim is to cooperate with the parents in making the children physically fit. In the last analysis physical fitness does not merely mean freedom from disease, but a reserve force of vitality and childhood is the time to build up that vitality.

CRAIG GETS BLANKS FOR FILLING OUT

Automobile Owners May Get Them from Registrar.

L. E. Craig deputy state registrar of automobiles, is in receipt of a letter from A. G. Snow, registrar of automobiles, in regard to the Burk law, regulating gross weight of commercial vehicles, which will become operative September 6. In his letter Mr. Allen says:

"I am enclosing herewith amendments and laws supplementing the Ohio automobile law, which were enacted by the eighty-third general assembly effective August 17. The Burk law, regulating gross weight of commercial vehicles, becomes operative September 6.

"Also I am enclosing approved blank forms, bill of sale for motor vehicles, used motor vehicles and sworn statement of ownership of used motor vehicles, required by Atwood law, senate bill, No 3. The attorney general has ruled that a sworn statement of ownership shall be filed with the county clerk only by owners of vehicles known as second-hand or used vehicles; the possession of which they obtained by purchase, trade or gift from an individual or second-hand dealer. A sworn statement is not necessary in the case of motor vehicles owned by persons who originally purchased the same from a manufacturer or manufacturer's agent prior to the passage of this act.

"Clerks of courts shall keep an index and file of each duplicate bill of sale and shall file and index each assignment of any such bill of sale and shall receive for the filing of each bill of sale and for each assignment and indexing thereof twenty-five cents. Under section, No. 11, there can be no charge made for filing the sworn statement of ownership therein mentioned. It is considered that for a copy of the filed statement of ownership and facts as provided under section 11 the clerks of courts may charge as provided in the general code section, No. 2901, ten cents per hundred words."

Mr. Craig has the blanks on hand now, ready to be filled out. He announces that it is unlawful to operate a motor vehicle without first obtaining a bill of sale as provided by law or without first filing with the clerk of court a sworn statement as provided by law. The penalty is a fine of from $25 to $500.

W. E. Coler wishes to announce his name as a candidate for Councilman of third ward on Democratic ticket subject to election before the primary next Tuesday.—Adv.-1-c.
